PROVINCIAL PUBLIC WORKS

The annual report of the Department of Public Works for Alberta is now in the hands of the printer and will be issued shortly. The summary of the work of the department prepared by John Stocks, deputy minister of public works, contains the following:

"The work of the department was carried on throughout the year without serious interruption of any kind and satisfactory progress was made in all branches of the work."

"In the highways branch the bridge construction crews were employed to good advantage. While the total number of bridges dealt with during the year was somewhat smaller than in 1912, there were several important permanent structures completed which more than made up for any diminution in numbers. In all there were 440 bridges dealt with of which 98 were repaired, 23 steel bridges and 316 wooden bridges were constructed."

"In the construction of small bridges the department continued to keep pace with the demands of the country. While the need for this class of work is so great in the newer districts, the necessity for large and permanent structures in the settled portion of the province are so pressing, that the maintenance of smaller bridges and eventually their reconstruction will soon have to be provided for by the local improvement and municipal organizations."

"There were 11 new ferries built and installed during 1913. In addition to these there were six new ferry scows built to replace those that were worn out."

"There were 60 ferries in the province at the end of 1913 as compared with 49 at the end of 1912."

"A large amount of trunk road work was carried on during the year, and a large amount of work was done on roads other than trunk roads."

"In view of the fact that the province is just now being settled and that the settlement and opening up of the country must extend over a period of years, the policy of the government has been to open up, as far as circumstances would permit, passable roads whereon communities could reach their nearest town or railway station."

"It is believed that the settler would be able to find a way to reach his nearest road and that as the country was brought under cultivation and the farms become more productive, the people would be perfectly willing to maintain and improve the roads provided for them and to extend them according to their requirements. That the work might be most effectively carried on the government has provided for the organization of local improvement districts and rural municipalities and these organizations have power to levy and collect taxes and expend their funds for the betterment of their respective district."

"This policy, although correct in principle has not met with the success that it merited. While some local organizations show themselves eager to co-operate with this department others continue to show themselves very reluctant to assume any responsibility for the maintenance of improvements. It is believed, however that conditions are improving and that as our people collectively become better educated in matters pertaining to local self government a greater degree of co-operation will result."

"The most important public works apart from bridges and roads, carried on during the year were the completion of the parliament buildings and the erecting of the government house at Edmonton, the Land Titles building at Edmonton, and agricultural schools at Olds, Claresholm and Vermilion."

"The work in the surveys branch showed a considerable increase over previous years."

Duitman-Wolking

The following is taken from the Albuquerque (N. Mexico) Morning Journal:

"Last evening at a quarter past 8 o'clock, Miss Henrietta Wolking and Mr. John Duitman were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Wolking, 1010 Foster avenue. Reverend Hugh Cooper, pastor of the Presbyterian church, performed the impressive ring service. Miss Wolking looked charming in a beautiful gown of white crepe meteor, trimmed in lace. She wore a long veil, English style and carried a large bunch of white sweet peas. Miss Lucy Alexander, the maid of honor, wore a lovely gown of white crepe de chine with wide girle of pink and green and carried a large bunch of pink sweet peas."

The groom was attended by the bride's brother, Mr. Harry Wolking. After the ceremony a delicious wedding supper was served. The Wolking home was beautifully decorated for the occasion with branches of California pepper trees, smilax, and sweet peas in profusion. Mr. and Mrs. Duitman left this morning for an extended wedding trip, after which they will make their home in Mirror, Canada."

The bride's traveling suit was particularly smart, being of a blue and white checked material. She wore a white hat with blue band to match. The guests at the wedding were Rev. and Mrs. Hugh Cooper, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Wolking, Rev. and Mrs. James Shiner of Santa Fe, Mr. and Mrs. John Wolking, Clifford and Walker Wolking, Miss Edna McChesney, Miss Paula Postel and Miss Pearl Wolking."

The bridal couple arrived in Mirror on Monday, July 13, 1914, coming home via Chicago, Minneapolis and Winnipeg. The best wishes of all for a happy married life are extended to Mr. and Mrs. Duitman."

We owe it to the community in which we live to do everything we can in every way possible that will be to its advantage. Our neighbor's prosperity means a great deal more to us than someone who lives elsewhere. We should bear this in mind in buying our goods. We can afford to pay our home made a firm price for his wares rather than send our money away, knowing as we do that every dollar our own citizens makes will help in sustaining our schools, churches and public institutions. It pays richly to patronize home industry."

R. E. Coleman is a visitor in Calgary this week.

It should be known by everybody in these days of gasoline lamps and stoves that gasoline will not explode until its fumes have been mixed with at least six parts of atmospheric air. Gasoline will catch fire as quickly as any liquid known, but let it alone and it will burn out, doing no damage and leaving no scar or sign of fire. Mixed with air in the proportions mentioned it is far more dangerous than dynamite. No receptacle of this liquid should ever be left unworked for to do so is to make the room where it is kept far worse than a powder magazine. This matter of safely handling gasoline is very easy, and no one should be ignorant of how it is done.

RESIN IN COAL.

How It Gets There and Adds to Heating Power.

To the head of the family who has been shoveling coal during the long winter it matters not what his coal is made from as long as it gives a reasonable amount of heat to be paid for. And yet this question of the ingredient matter and the geologic processes to which past from which coal is formed, is considered so important by those who are not simply users of coal that the United States Geologic Survey has made a study of the subject of the effect of resin in coals. Resins, under which is included the resin of co. resins, the copal from which varnish is made, the amber used in jewelry, and many other similar materials, are secretions generated in some of the cells or vessels in plants of many different kinds. One of the most familiar resin-producing trees is the pitch pine, in which pitch is a resin.

Resins contain very much more hydrogen and carbon compared to the amount of oxygen than ordinary wood, so that, when these resins equal, the resins woods make much hotter fires than those containing no resins, the hydrogen and carbon being sources of the heat. The larger the amount of heat the hotter the fire.
Many a Mississippi river steamer was blown up in the oil days when in order to win a race, the barrels of resin in the cargo were broached to keep the fires. Resin adds heat power not only to the woods which contain it, but also to the coals.

This is why there is resin in coal being more resistant to decay under water than the wood cells and other issues of the plants and trees from which the peat of bogs and coal-forming swamps are produced, the resin lumps and particles are generally found to be buried in the peat deposits even when most of the surrounding wood has rotted away and disappeared.
In this way they are, sometimes concentrated in quantity so that, together with wax, like that of balsams, they form considerable portions of the valuable debris in the peat. Peat is the mother substance which, after deep burial on the crust of the earth, has been converted into coal. The kind of the peat largely determines the type of the coal.

As Good as a Porter.

It is curious how many people are in ignorance of simple little facts in connection with every day life which would save them a large amount of unnecessary labor and fatigue. Take the case of carrying a heavy bag or portmanteau, for instance. We all know the annoying way in which it knocks against our legs and the immense intolerable ache in the arm that is supporting the burden. Few people are aware, however, that by folding a couple of newspapers and putting them under one's armpit a large amount of the strain and inconvenience is immediately removed.
Try it next time you are lugging to catch a train.

Mixed the Combination.
He is one of those rushing old rats who think better the key to victory with the gentler sex. The other evening he was at a reception with his wife, and they met the handsome Miss Dink, at whom he referred a whole battery of compliments.
Then, turning to his wife, he said, "It's a good thing I didn't meet her before I married you, my dear."
"Indeed it is," she said sweetly —"for her, I congratulate Miss Dink."

The Secret.

Sparla—I wonder why it is a woman lets out everything you tell her Parker—My dear boy, a woman has only two ways of a secret, either it is not worth keeping or it is too good to keep.

He Knew.

Bacon—Why, he's even put a orange on his bedclothes.
Eckert—You must be mistaken.
Bacon—No! I'm not. I heard it he's not such money on a bed mortgage.

GETTI &amp; MOVIE FEATURES.

Operators Run Great Risks to Get Sensational Films.

Do you ever stop to consider the many difficulties that attend a successful picture photographer? No solar was ever more a hero than the man who goes into the heart of South Africa, or the wilds of South America, and with a camera for a weapon stalks big game that the world may see them in their own haunts and in a natural position.
This fact is the hardest thing to do.
To take a picture of a tiger, depicting its every action, and to get the best, know that it is being done, is as much for the photographer's own sake as for the picture future, is no easy task.

As may be imagined, there are many methods in vogue among photographers to obtain truthful pictures of animals. It is entirely a case of strategy on the man's part.
He must wait in the jungle sometimes for days until his offer becomes familiar to the animal. He builds himself a house, sometimes inside a hollow tree trunk, sometimes in the tree itself, and hides his time.

But this is not enough, for under ordinary circumstances the animal started to turn the handle of the camera, the animal would be much that the beast would with a light or run away, and either would be for the man.

So again resorting to strategy, he invents a machine, small and compact, that will exactly imitate the clicking of a camera. This is turned by the action of the wind, and it is not long before the animal becomaccustomed to the noise. Sometimes, though, it is necessary to bring the animal with a wounded deer or a large goat.

Probably the hardest picture of the kind to obtain is that of a fish under water. Much patience is necessary and much skill. The first step is the manufacture of a glass cubicle, which is semi-submerged and contains the man and his camera. The top is open to the water and there the operator must receive all the light for his picture. It is compulsory that the man shall stay there for an abrupt movement might scare the subject beyond recovery.

A fish is noted for its curiosity and its habit of coming to the glass camera man works. A short blind in the water will bring him from all over the spot to investigate. Likewise with the cage. They want to know what it is and it is not long before they will be close to it. Then the picture is taken.

The camera snaring of birds is an undertaking that requires much skill and great patience. To get a successful picture of a bird on the nest or in the act of feeding its young is not an easy task. Without fail, the operator is very hard. Prof. Frank Newman, the well-known English photographer, tells many interesting stories of his adventures in this line.

He cited one case in particular in which he had lain in wait for a week with his initiation camera going fair apace. "Rabbits, a small animal, he would, only to have the bird take flight and leave her nest forever, thus wasting all his time. He has, however, been able to catch near pictures of the moor hen, probably the most timid of birds.

Another case has also been very successful in his pictures of large birds, such as the South American condor and the American eagle and the buzzard and vultures of the South. As may be imagined, a different method is required to get such pictures as these.

Editor In Name Only.

Fictitious "editors" are regular members of the staff of many of the news newspapers. Some time ago the editorial board "responsible editor" of the Mirror Journal was charged under a statute relating to the incitement of the public enemy. He pleaded not guilty, and it turned out that he could not even read and could only write his own name with much difficulty. He has been grounded in his recently forfeiting his name as responsible editor of the paper. Although the journal was issued in St. Petersburg, the "editor" worked in Riga in a factory hand and was actually serving a sentence for robbery when the charge was brought against him.

Brilliant Fish Hues.

Like birds, many fishes assume their brightest hues when they wish to attract the opposite sex of their species. The colors of the male common goby become exceedingly intense, brilliant and iridescent in the breeding season. The fish also get on an intense silvery blue at the breeding time which is very attractable and at one time caused naturalists to designate it as a distinct species. The males of the tench, roach and perch also show a marked increase in brilliancy in the breeding season.

Polished.

A certain newspaper artist, noted for his large feet as well as his facility with the pencil, sat down to have his shoes polished.

"Give me a fine shine, Tony," he said to the operator. "I'm going to see a pretty girl and want to look a bit."

When the contract was completed and payment made, Tony said, "By boos, if you don't make a bit of dash about tonight it won't be cause you don't shine downstairs."

Men and Women and Love.

Swedishborg once observed that woman seeks in man something good which she really loves as true, an expression of wisdom; the man, on the other side, seeks in woman something good which he really loves as beautiful.

Painfully Frank.

Caller—Is your mistress in?

window as you came up the walk, seen her to say that she was out.

OUR WORD "GARDEN."

In the Old Anglo-Saxon it Meant Private Inclosed Land.

We speak so freely and often of a "garden," assuming that there is some well defined raison d'être for that word even among the authorities on garden-land subjects. But the fact is that it has no such strictly specific limits in their writings and speech and can be taken to mean anything from the courtyard to mean anything from the courtyard to private park and related to the tin can garden of a back yard.

The word garden is from the old Anglo-Saxon root "gyrdan," meaning an inclosure. At that time, due to the uncertain character of community life, it was either inclosed within fortifications or left unprotected and exposed without. This private inclosed land was the garden of that time. That is the meaning of garden in the song of Solomon.

Gradually the sense of the word has changed to cover those parts of the land devoted to the cultivation of plants either for pleasure or for use; thus, we have the vegetable or fruit garden, and on the other hand, the wall, water or rose-garden, etc.

Liberty Hyde Bailey defines a garden as "the personal part of an estate, that area which is most intimately associated with the private life of the house."

Whatever the sense in which it is used, the word "garden" always succeeds in carrying with it an atmosphere of romance and beauty, which countless acres of the current day Philadelphia record.

Calling on the Poet
"Did you call on those two people?"
"Oh, yes," answered the amiable webster worker
"And what do they really?"
"Why, I didn't go inside. The house was so fearfully beautiful that I just

MIRROR TO DEFEND 13, MIRROR'S LUCKY "BREWERY CUP" NUMBER

Trochu has challenged for the "Calgary Brewery Cup" and the games will be played in Alix next Thursday and Friday, July 23 and 24.

On the first day there will be a double header, the first game called for 3.30 p. m., sharp and the second at 6.30 p. m. If a third game is necessary it will be pulled off the following Friday morning.

The Mirror club has been given the contract of defending the cup for the Alix club; if Mirror is successful in winning two out of three games in the first series the silverware will find a resting place in Mirror and the succeeding games for the cup will have to be played on the Mirror diamond.

The games have been so arranged that the business men will be able to take advantage of the Thursday half holiday and so make the trip to Alix. There is nothing like local support in a baseball game, and it is hoped that every person who can possibly do so, will go to Alix next Thursday and root for Mirror. The "Brewery Cup" should occupy a niche in one of the local business establishments for the next 12 months.

Everybody go to Alix on Thursday, July 23, and root! root! root!

TENNIS

Four of the Alix tennis players paid a visit to the Mirror Tennis Club last Thursday afternoon and a number of games were played on the Mirror court. The games were all in favor of the Mirror players, the scores being as follows:

Crittall and Good vs. Tozier and Bell, 6-4, 6-2.
 Meyer and W. MacKirdy vs. Bally and T. J. Pym, 9-7, 6-3.

Crittall and Good vs. Bally and T. J. Pym, 7-5.
 Meyer and W. MacKirdy vs. Bell and Tozier, 9-3.
 The first mentioned are Mirror players in each case.

Dr. Meyer and Fred Day won the tennis racquet set up as prizes in the tournament at Eskrine on Friday, July 10th.

Eskrine tennis players to the number of eight will play a return game in Mirror next Sunday.

The wireless call "S. O. S." used when a disaster happens at sea, does not stand for any particular words, as supposed by many. It is merely a signal that means the same in all languages. "Our ship is in distress and requires immediate assistance." It is in the continental code, and when a wireless operator, no matter whether he be British, Spanish, German, Japanese or Russian, and utterly unacquainted with any language but his own, hears that faint "dot, dot, dot—dash," "dash—dot, dot, dot," "tickling" cry for help into the telephone receiver he wears on his head, he knows immediately that there is a ship in distress, flashes back for location, and in a trice is on the way to assist.

Mirror went down to their fourth defeat of the season in the Eskrine last Friday afternoon, the home team doing the trick. As per usual the team opposing Mirror made their runs in the first part of the game, after which Mirror steadied down and played consistent ball, shutting Eskrine out for six consecutive innings. Mirror went to bat in the last half of the fifth with the score 6 to 2. Smith and Iverson went out; Cundall started the rally and before the tenth came within an ace of tying the score. The visiting team were credited with several costly errors, and those, followed by hits gave Eskrine a lead that was impossible to overcome.

Quebec, July 11.—The collier Stordal is held to blame for the Empress of Ireland disaster is the findings of the wreck the commission handed down today. The commission holds that the disaster was due to the Stordal's change of course ordered by the third officer without instructions from the first officer, who was in charge of the collier at the time.

What is Bread in the Courts?

A short time ago in British Columbia Court of Appeals a decision was handed down to the effect that since bread is a necessary food, stores could not be prosecuted for selling it on Sunday. Last week some storekeepers in Vancouver were charged with violation of the Lord's Day Act, but they were dismissed on the strength of the Court of Appeal's decision referred to, the judge in the latter instance stating that he could not differentiate between fruit and bread. The judge is reported as saying that he could not see why fruit and other foods should not receive consideration as well as bread.

The Commercial is inclined to agree with the latter ruling. There is a sense in which the word "bread" includes every kind of food man partakes of. We can hardly think of the Scriptural "Daily Bread" as merely meaning baked dough. We rather favor the wide application which would include a good dish of turkey, chicken or beefsteak. If the law requires a household to provide on Saturday for the Sunday food, let it cover everything in the eating line; if, on the other hand, any food is to be allowed for sale on Sunday, let the application be broad enough to cover all kinds of ordinary staples.—Winnipeg Commercial.
